

FRUIT

Rambutan

A small fruit covered in soft hairs, with translucent, mild, juicy flesh.

The rambutan is covered with a red rind adorned with soft hairs that give it the look of a sea urchin. Its white, translucent flesh, tender and juicy, surrounds a stone. Its taste, sweet and slightly tangy, recalls lychee with a touch of grape. It opens simply by cutting the skin, and is eaten fresh. It is offered as Class 1.

FLAVOUR

Sweet, slightly tangy, lychee and grape
